

NATIONAL ADJUDICATORS' LIST

CONTINUOUS LEARNING REQUIREMENTS

In order that an adjudicator listed on the National Adjudicators' List (NAL) stays abreast of developments in dispute resolution, he must contribute on the DABFORUM (a forum initiated especially for listed adjudicators). This can be done in either of several ways:

1. Inform the forum of a relevant, interesting website, giving a brief introduction to the website and why it should be of interest to adjudicators. 1 credit each
2. Inform the forum of interesting statistics involving dispute resolution in other countries. 2 credits each
3. Case law: past case law relevant to construction claims and / or disputes (RSA, Namibia or SADC) giving a brief overview of the case. 4 credits each
4. Case law: past case law relevant to construction claims and / or disputes (internationally) giving a brief overview of the case. 3 credits each
5. Give examples of actual adjudication cases (including possible decision), but ensuring no reference is made to the particular contract or either of the parties or the engineer involved. 4 credits each
6. Put a case or problem to the forum and convene the resultant/ pursuant discussion for a maximum period of 3 weeks.
a) Convener 5 credits for the event and period
b) Participant 3 credits for the event and period
7. Paste an interesting article pertaining to adjudication of contract law or similar relevant material. 3 credits each
8. Present an adjudicated case that was brought before a court of law, stating the reason and presenting the outcome of the case. 2 credits each

REQUIRED CREDITS

In order to qualify for continued listing, the Adjudicator must achieve at least 7 credits per year.

Adjudicators are required to keep track of their own points and to report these points to the Evaluation Committee on an annual or biennial basis (as required by the Evaluation Committee from time to time and upon its giving prior notice of 14 days) to reconfirm the adjudicator's registration.

The 'continuous learning' credits are to be earned for the purpose of the adjudicator's registration remaining current. Therefore, the credits do not count towards the credits required for getting registered in, or upgraded to, a specific adjudicator category unless the credits happen to be scored for an item that is also included under the adjudicator application form's scoring rules.
